Processed Food Products

India's current import regulations do not require any specific export certificates from the country of origin for imports of processed food products, including products in consumer packages. However, all processed food and beverages products imported into India should meet requirements under various domestic food laws, such as:

- o The Prevention of Food Adulteration (PFA) Act, 1954, and PFA Rules of 1955, as amended.
- o The Standards and Weights and Measures Act, 1976
- o Meat Food Products Order, 1992
- o Milk and Milk Products Order, 1992
- o Fruit Products Order, 1955

Imported food products such as milk powder, condensed milk, and infant food should comply with Indian quality standards (<http://www.bis.nic.in>)

The domestic food laws/standards apply equally to domestic and imported products. At the port of entry, the food products are sampled and tested by inspectors from the Ministry of Health, and the consignment is cleared only if it meets the requirements of the domestic laws/standards. Details on Indian food laws are available in our 'Food and Agricultural Import Regulations and Standards Country Report 2005' (IN5080), which can be accessed via the USDA/FAS website: www.fas.usda.gov.

SECTION II: PURPOSE OF THE EXPORT CERTIFICATES

Historically, India has had a highly restrictive import market for food and agricultural products. Although quantitative import restrictions on most agricultural products were removed effective April 1, 2001, non-tariff barriers, including phytosanitary and sanitary restrictions, were introduced.

Imports of plants and plant products are subject to a "Bio-security & Sanitary-Phytosanitary Import Permit" issued by the Department of Agriculture and Cooperation, Ministry of Agriculture, per the conditions of the Plant Quarantine (Regulation of Imports into India) Order (PQO) 2003, as amended. The importer applies for an import permit and submits it to the exporter, who in turn acquires the required phytosanitary certificate from the exporting country's authorities. The relevant authority in the country of export issues the phytosanitary certificate based on the specific conditions as stated on the import permit.

Similarly, imports of animals and animal products (including meat and meat products) are subject to a "Sanitary Import Permit" issued by the Department of Animal Husbandry and Dairying, Ministry of Agriculture, per the conditions of Livestock Importation Act, 1898. The relevant authority in the country of export must issue a sanitary certificate based on the specific conditions as stated on the import permit.

SECTION III: SPECIFIC ATTESTATION REQUIRED ON THE EXPORT CERTIFICATE

The attestation for both of the above-mentioned export certificates should meet all specific conditions stated in the respective import permits. These conditions vary from commodity to commodity, and may change over time.

SECTION IV: GOVERNMENT CERTIFICATE LEGAL ENTRY REQUIREMENTS

The original export certificates should accompany each individual export consignment of the product at the time of entry into India. The government of India does not accept export declarations by suppliers or manufacturers as proof of compliance. However, in certain cases, the Government of India may allow export certificates containing specific declarations from the import permit by organizations accredited by the government of the exporting country. The government of the exporting country has to apply to the Ministry of Agriculture for this special approval.

SECTION V: OTHER CERTIFICATION OR ACCREDITATION REQUIREMENT

Certificate of Origin: A certificate of origin issued by the relevant authority of the exporting country's government, state government, industry association, or manufacturer/supplier should accompany the export consignment of all food and agricultural products, including processed and packaged food.

This certificate should mention the order number, container number, port of discharge, buyer's name, and product description, along a declaration along the following lines:

"The undersigned for (relevant organization) declares that the following mentioned goods as consigned above (or below) are the products of the United States of America (or any country of origin). We hereby certify goods to be of United States of America (or any country) origin."
